

2011 RCPA Scholarship in Pathology for Medical Schools - Jonathon Sen

The pathology teaching at ANU by the esteemed members of the pathology team has always been spectacular. The project undertaken as part of the elective to further develop pathology learning materials increases the awareness of the complexities of teaching. Establishing new additions to help subsequent students has been as enjoyable as it has been educational, and is an undertaking that I believe more students should pursue.

The elective program for pathology was incredibly memorable and, perhaps, paradigm shifting; a true eye-opener to the importance and intricacies of pathology testing. I have developed a great appreciation for the work done by the highly skilled members of the pathology department and the many stressors and difficulties they face.
