22 FEBRUARY 2019

Newly appointed Deputy CEO of the RCPA

The Royal College of Pathologists of Australasia (RCPA), the leading organisation representing pathologists in Australasia, is proud to announce the appointment of its new Deputy Chief Executive Officer, Dr Janet Warner. Chief Executive Officer of the RCPA, Dr Debra Graves, officially welcomed the new deputy to her position at the RCPA's annual conference, Pathology Update 2019, which is taking place in Melbourne this weekend from 22 - 24 February 2019.

“The RCPA Board, the RCPA President, Dr Bruce Latham, and I are absolutely thrilled to welcome Dr Warner and to announce her new appointment as Deputy CEO of the College. Dr Warner is a highly respected member of the medical community and her wealth of experience, gained from her extensive career, is a welcome addition to our team. We very much look forward to working with her.”

Dr Warner's appointment follows the departure of her esteemed predecessor, Dr Bronwen Ross.

“I would also like to take the opportunity to thank Dr Warner's predecessor, Dr Bronwen Ross, who, over the span of her nine-year tenure, made an immeasurable contribution to the College. Together with the RCPA Board, I would like to extend our gratitude to Dr Ross and, once again, warmly welcome Dr Warner to the position.”

Dr Janet Warner is a Fellow of RCPA in Chemical Pathology, has a PhD in molecular genetics, is a Fellow of the Royal Australian College of General Practitioners (RACGP) and an Associate Fellow of the Royal Australasian College of Medical Administrators (RACMA). She most recently held the position of Director of Pathology and Director of Chemical Pathology at Queensland's Mater Pathology and Senior Lecturer at the University of Queensland.
